"Why," said Mr. Beecher, with emphasis, "he will go straight to the devil. The father—with the best of intentions—has lost his boy which, if he had allowed him to follow his natural bent, he would have saved him. This was not an overdrawn picture, for (pausing and looking at the congregation), you for the Herdil. Clinton is respectable.

was mid an overtaken pack, to durasing and looking at the congregation,) you know it is yourselves (laughter,) and I put it to you if some of you do not feel exactly like this with regard to manual labor." Mr. Beecher paid an eloquent tribute to New England thrift and industry, without work. Put an easy-going people in New England and they would starve, and so wherever you went if there was a bank to be run or a railroad built, nine times out of ten there was a Yankee in it. No other part of the community are so much cursed or so universally blamed, they are the Jews of America. All over the world menthate the Jews, and all over the world Jews persevere in spite of persecution. They build themselves up, that grand old race, and bid fair to carry the polities of the world with them, and that grand out race, and that out out of the politics of the world with them, and the Yankee is the Jew of the Western Continent; they have been brought up to work, to put the whole of their manhood into their business, and you see the product of it. Mr. Beecher, in conclusion, fuct of it. Mr. Beecher, in conclusion, carnestly be sought his hearers if they valed the future of their children, to bring hem up to some trade which should make them independent and self-reliant inder any adverso circumstances. How to Prevent Colds.

1. Eat plain, unstimulating food, oid rich pies and puddings, rich gravies, etc. Especially guard against g. If the bowels are constipated and the other excretory organs over-worked and weakened by the effort to throw off the excess of food, the person is far more liable to colds and to other diseases as well.

2. Avoid hot, stimulating and alcoholic drinks of every kind. The tendency of all is to weaken.

3. Always have your sleeping room well ventilated. More colds are caused by sleeping in hot, close rooms than in my other manner.

4. Take daily out-door exercise accord ing to your strength. It is better, as a rule, to get caught out in a storm even, if you are suitably protected, than to reyou are suitably protected, than to re-main in all day.

Rub the entire surface of the body daily with a sponge, towel, or with the hands wet in cold water, wipe dry, and rub briskly with a dry coarse towel until the skin is all in a glow. It can all be done in three minutes. It should be done in a warm room, unless it can be done in a coof room without the least bit of chillness being produced. The person should feel warmer after the bath than before, otherwise he may know that he has not otherwise he may know that he has not taken it properly.—Herald of Health.

A Curious Story.

A late number of the Commercial Adone of the whale ships in that harbor recently captured a whale in the Arctic seas, which had in its careass a harpoon. The harpoon was known to belong to a ship which was at that time cruising in the northern seas, on the other side of the continent. The whale lind evidently passed from one open sea to the other by way of the Pole. He must have found pen water, for even a whale must come n at short intervals to blow. up at saort intervals to now. It is estimated that the Polar sea is mavigable for whales from one side of the continent to the other. But while it does not follow that ships] would tollow the same track, the fact cited is one of considerable interest. Shipmasters may be able to navi-gate the Polar sea when they know as much about navigation in high latitudes as this whale with the harpoon sticking in his back.

The cactus fence is an institution pecu-ar to Mexico. The variety of the plant sed for this purpose is called the organo. It is eight-sided, and shoots up straight as in arrow, from ten to twenty-five feet in neight and five to eight inches in thick-ness. The fence-builders cut the cactus in sections of the right length, stick the cut end into a trench, cover the earth around it to the depth of a foot, and the fence is made. The pieces are set as closely to-gether as possible, and as they take root and grow for centuries, the fence improves vith age, instead of going to decay like

The Springfield Republican; in its last issue, contains a chatty, gossipling letter about the New York bar, from which we condense the body of this article. It appears that the bar of New York numbers Plain Talk with a General Application.

From Monday's World.

Mr. Beecher, last evening, took five verses, from the 7th to the 12th, of the 3d chapter of Thessolonians for his text, and delivered an address therefrom on manual labor. After citing various other passages, showing that the Apostles had commanded work with the hands as necessary and honorable, and this had been the case with our fathers in this country; but he (Mr. Beecher) was sorry to see that the tendency of the age what to drift away from this, and to look down upon all manual labor with contempt, and there was too much desire on the part of young men to get rich too rapidly and without giving the necessary equivalent of labor, and a steady current of young men was setting in to the large citles from the country and from the country towns, all bent upon the acquisition of wealth without manual labor. They crowd the professions. Professional men are drugs on the mar-

Put an easy-going people without work. Put an easy-going people were England and they would starve, and they type of a Tombs prison lawyer.

"The press of business in the courts, the favoritism shown to certain lawyers, and the rapid accumulation of reports are sources of much complaint. The expenses incident to litigation are also very heavy. The eloquence of the New York barranks yery high and among its members.

The Western and Southern parables they say will refu super turns. congress appear to be go tened cannot by location. The Western and Southern members, they say, will vote almost unanimously against repeal, on the ground that it taxes only those who can afford to pay it, and falls in greatest part upon the East where they say there is plenty of money. The Eastern and Middle States members will yote almost unanimously in favor of will vote almost unanimously in favor of will vote almost unanimously in two or repeal. I think the judgment of the gen-tlemen reterred to is reliable. They ad-mit that in some sudden movement re-garding taxes they may succeed in re-pealing the income tax in order to prevent pening the income tax in order to prevent the tariff being reduced; but as the matter looks now, they are disposed to give up the fight.
